Navajo Nation Council offers condolences to the family of Navajo Code Talker Roy Hawthorne, Sr.

WINDOW ROCK – The 23rd Navajo Nation Council offers condolences to the family of Navajo Code Talker Roy Hawthorne, Sr., who passed away on Saturday at the age of 92. Hawthorne was born in Ganado, and resided in the community of Tsé Si áni, also known as Lupton, Ariz.

"The Navajo Nation Council offers our appreciation and prayers to the family of Roy Hawthorne, for his countless contributions and distinct service for our Navajo people and our country." stated Speaker LoRenzo Bates.

Hawthorne is Kintichí'nii (Red House People Clan) and born for Bilagáana (White People). He enlisted with the Marine Corps at the age of 17 and began his service as a Code Talker in World War II. Following World War II, Hawthorne then enlisted in the U.S. Army and served in the Korean War.

In September 2015, Hawthorne and Code Talker Samuel Holiday returned to Camp Pendleton where the Navajo Nation Council honored them along with Major General Daniel J. O'Donohue, who serves as the Commanding General of the 1st Marine Division, for their honorable service in World War II. The event marked the first time the two had returned to Camp Pendleton since enlisting with the Marine Corps as young men.

During the event at Camp Pendleton, Hawthorne was presented an honorary coin from the Marine Corps. He spoke during the event and recalled the challenges that he and his fellow Code Talkers dealt with when leaving their homelands and in battle.

Council Delegate Raymond Smith, Jr., who represents the community of Tsé Si áni on the Council, also extended condolences to the family of Hawthorne and recalled him as a humble person, who sacrificed for his people and his country.

Code Talker Hawthorne was preceded in death by his wife, Jayne Hawthorne. He is survived by five children and 13 grandchildren.
