There is growing concerns of COVID – 19 (also called novel coronavirus), the Navajo Nation Legislative Branch is assessing how to limit the spread of the infection. One measure is to postpone large-scale activities within the Navajo Nation, where large number of people are within arm's length of one another. This recommendation is meant to prevent the spread of COVID-19 in our community, especially to those who are most vulnerable to severe illness.

The overall public health and well-being is the Legislative Branch's top priority, we will continue to monitor COVID – 19 as it develops and make future recommendations as necessary.
